Like its neighbor, 116 West Market, it has a Victoria porch with screening. It is built on a low brick foundation. The sash of the facade has one over one panes and those of the east side have nine over nine and nine over six and six over six on first, second and attic stories. The entrance also has been 'Victorianized' and has a double door with applied bolelection molding. All windows have green louvered shutters. Above the front door is a Palladian style window, like many others in the county, with fluted pilaster strips and a keystone with rosette. There is very little to recommend the cornice; evidently it was removed in late nineteenth century. There is a lancet window in a gable in 5.
